THE COMMITTEE'S REPORT AN ABLE DOCUMENT-THE RESOLUTION DECLARING THE ELECTION

VOID WILL CERTAINLY PASS. INY TELEGRAPH TO THE TRIBUNE. WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.-The report of Senator Morton's Committee in the Caldwell case to-day [published elsewhere] is spoken of by Senators of all shades of politics who have read it as one of the ablest documents that has come from a Committee of Congress during the past two years.

The high ground taken in regard to buying off opposing candidates was quite unexpested, as such bargains, although they have never been considered highly moral or praiseworthy, have not been looked upon as corrupt by politicians generally. The resolution reported can be passed by a bare majority of the Senate, and there is no doubt that, with Morton in its support, it will be easily put through, despite the ion of Anthony, Carpenter, and Logan, who refused to sign the report, and will make speeches in Caldwell's defense. It is hoped that this investigation, and those affecting the course of Pomeroy and Harlan, will make the use of money at Senatorial elections so dangerous that the practice will be entirely destroyed.

Such a result would send to the Senate more rep resentatives of the States and fewer tools of great corporations. The few words of partial excuse for Caldwell with which the report closes were probably no more than just to him. He was totally ignorant of the tricks of politics, and was as dough in the hands of the men who undertook to elect him. and who convinced him that a Senatorial contest was a fight of dollars against dollars, and was not decided by merit.

THE POMEROY INVESTIGATION.

THE COURSE DECIDED UPON BY THE COMMIT-TEE-A PLAIN STATEMENT BY YORK-LITTLE IMPORTANCE ELICITED IN THE CROSS

EXAMINATION. BY TELEGRAPH TO THE TRIBUNE! Washington, Feb. 17 .- The Pomeroy investigation was fairly put on its fect to-day. The Committee, of which Senator Frelinghuysen is chairman, met with closed doors this morning to determine its mode of procedure. It was voted to hold the investigation in and to allow one man to appear as counsel or each side, with the right to examine and cross-examine witnesses. At 3 o'clock this afternoon the inquiry itself egan in the room of the Senate Committee on Patents. At the large table in the center of the room aat the members of the Committee, Frelinghuysen at the head; on his right were Senators Thurman and Alcorn, and on his left Senators Vickers and Buckingham. At the foot of the table was a chair for the witnesses, and one for the short-hand reporter. At a small table on the right sat Pomeroy and his counsel, the Hoo. Caleb Cusbing and Judge A. H. Horton, U. S. Distric -Attorney for Kansas; and near the foot of the large table was B. F. Simpson counsel for the prosecution. Chairs were prowided for about fifty persons, and The people who gathered as spectators were mostly Kansas men, including some those who have been in attendance upon the Caldwell investigation, but on the whole more respectable in their appearance than those who thronged Morton's Committee-room. A bystander remarked that "They must be lingher priced fellows." York, the first witness, and conspirator to entrap Mr. Pomeroy, is a man of medium hight, from 35 to years of age, with a thin face, full beard, and high, intellectual appearing forehead. He gave his ony without hesitation, though he was not forward to volunteer information; and, altogether, must have impressed those who heard him that he was telling the truth. His interviews with Pomeroy were described with great detail. He mentioned the different articles of furniture in the rooms where the interviews took place, the relative positions of Pomeroy and himself when the money was paid, where the money was taken what was done with it, and what was said. It seems that Pomeroy, according to his own statement, was offer York any money until the latter had promised to vote for him. then, being one of his friends, he said he would help him. Judge Horton, who conducted the cross-examination Pomeroy, is not a man of impressive presence. He put

The prosecution in the Pomeroy bribery case say they shall endeavor to induce the Senate Committee to admit other testimony regarding Mr. Pomeroy's bribery than that relating to the York case; and Col. York has writ-ten a letter to the Committee which meets the approval of Mr. Simpson, detailing what he expects to prove, and by whom he expects to prove it.

The Kansas positicians also desired that the Committee should admit the testimony of more than two witnesses to prove any fact, but the Committee will probably not By a Mr. Rohrbacher, Mr. Simpson expects to show that he (Rohrbacher) was authorized by Senator Pomery and United States District-Attorney Horton to pay money to members of the Legislature for their Horton has already sent his resignation to Attorney General Williams by Ftank Bacon, member of the Lower House of the Kansas Legislature, who has also been summoned. It will be shown that he was offered $2,000 for his vote by Rorohbacher and also by Horton.

Mr. O'Driscol, also a member of the House, is expected to swear that he was offered money to vote for Pomeroy by four different persons. Both Simpson and York, who seem to have charge of the prosecution, say they are in earnest; that they are backed by the people of Kansas, and that they will not stop until every dishonest man in Kansas is decapitated. They say the State is wild with excitement; that meetings are being held all over the State, and the influence of such men as Pomeroy and Caldwell is at an end.

COL. YORK'S TESTIMONY-THE CROSS-EXAMINA TION-HE WAS NOT SEARCHED FOR SOME HOURS BEFORE AND AFTER VISITING POMEROY.

[GENERAL PRESS DISPATCH.] Washington, Feb. 17 .- After the assembling of the Senate Committee to investigate the charges against Senator Pomeroy at 3 o'clock this afternoon, the Hon. THE CROSS-EXAMINATION. Upon cross-examination by Mr. Horton, Mr. York stated he made the first public statement of his transactions with Mr. Pomeroy in the Joint Convention, a little while after the hour fixed by law for casting the vote for Mr. Horton asked if he did not say at the close of hi peech in the Joint Convention every word he had uted was God struth as he should answer before God Mr. York replied that it was utterly impossible for him to state what he said in that speech. He made his statement concerning his transactions with Pomeroy coolly and deliberately, but at the close of his address he became excited, and might have made extravagant statements. The closing affirmation was as to the trath of what he believed, and what he intended to say; he could not answer for the truth of what he did say; capnot remember what Senator Price said in reply to his speech; cannot say whether he wanted an investigation before a vote was taken; he said he had exposed his own villainy in exposing Pomeroy, and was thinking more of that and other cutting personal remarks than about anything he had said about a recess; he supposed the motion for a recess was made for the purpose of allowing the opposition time to decide on another candidate; the motion was made about 5° clock, and the roll was not called until about five hours after; witness opposed a motion to adjourn; I don't think the question of my truthfulness came up in any other way than on a motion of adjournment, and that it was only incidental; J. C. Horton, Johnson, and Simpson scarched his person for money at about 7 p. m., some five or six hours before he saw Mr. Pomeroy; in the meantime he went to Pomeroy's rooms; saw between 100 and 200 persons.

Mr. Horten—How could you say, then, that they knew now much you had when you went to Mr. Pomeroy's com? A. I cannot say any further that that they knew now much I had at that time.

Mr. Horton—Did you, in conversation with Mr. Walchison of Independence, at Topeka, state, substantially, that the means resorted to to defeat Foureroy were more degrading than those he was using i A. I do not think I did; I spoke of some papers of a scandaious nature that were being used, which I thought were discraceful.

Q. Did you not state in the presence of Mr. Holmes of Atenison, in Topeka, on the day after the election, that the plot was a scheme of six months' work, and that you were resolved to make it a success, cost what it night; and that you had sacrificed your honor in so doing? A. I emphatically say that I did not, nor to any one else.

Q. In the Joint Convention did you say substantially.

"I know several members of the Legislature who have Pomeroy's money in their pockets now for their votes; I will not state now who they are, but will develop the facts at the proper time?" A. Well, Sir, I cannot state what I did state at that time; as I said before, what I said in closing my remarks was said under excitement, and might have been extravagant; witness had no doubt that his extravagant statements might have had an intense upon the Legislature; could not say whether he said in that speech that Mr. Pomeroy had given him names of other persons for whose votes he had paid money; does not now say so; Mr. Pomeroy toid him that he had not bought any votes; the nearest thing to it was his saying that he had paid the expenses of some of the members.

ers. Horton-Was not the interview about to terminate memeers.

Mr. Horton—Was not the interview about to terminate on Monday night without Mr. Pomeroy having offered you money, when you said you saw no reason for remaining longer? A. I don't know whether it was about to terminate or not; my belief is that he would have offered me money, whether I had said what i did or not; on Monday evening witness requested Horton to have Johnson and Simpson come to his room as soon as ne could; when they arrived the door was locked, and witness told his accomplices of his invitation to have a business interview with Mr. Pomeroy; they all agreed that it meant that Pomeroy wanted to buy his vote, and it was determined then what course he should pursue; don't know both had aiready made up his mind, because he had talked with Simpson about it on Saturday singht; the conclusion arrived at was that if Pomeroy should offer me money that I should take it, and that I should stake it.

and the base had talked with stage at was that if Poincight; the conclusion arrived at was that if Poincight; the conclusion arrived at was that if Poincight had offer me monney that I should take it, and that I hould expose him in the Joint Csuvention.

I went to his roum; I certainly thought that he and sought me; witness was certain that Hardgrave and sought me; witness was certain that Hardgrave had sought me; business interview" in inviting him to had sought me; witness was certain that Hardgrave used the term "business interview" in inviting him to see Pomeroy; he told George R. Peck of Indiana and George C. Crowther, Secretary of the Senate, that he was to make the exposure before it was made; he and six persons named as prey to the plot pledged themselves to maintain secreey until after the exposure should be made; trowther made this promise, with the exception that he was to speak to the Lieutenant-Governor, and tell him that if winess arose he was to have the foor; witness denied emphatically that he advised Crowther to circulate the report that he (Growther to circulate the report that he (Growther) had $6,200 deposited with him as conscience money, for the purpose of strengthening his (York's) states meet.

of Mr. Thurman—At your meeting in Horton's room, the question discussed whether it would be made antageous to make the exposure on Tuesday in the diagon on Wednesday in the joint convention? A. I at a loss to say whether it was or not.

REASON FOR OPPOSING POMEROY. In reply to questions by his own counsel, Mr. York said that no formal pledge of secresy was made by those who planned the exposure; he was unequivocally pledged against Pomeroy before he came to Topeka; he vas Secretary of the Anti-Pomeroy Caucus, and made speeches at its meetings; the proceedings were published, and his name mentioned frequently among those who and his name mentioned frequently among those who spoke against Pomeroy; his only motive in accepting the money from Mr. Pomeroy, and in making the exposure was to defeat Pomeroy; he did not think it was to the interest of the State that he should be reflected; he believed that he was using money to secure his election, and he believed so now; he believed that there was no chance of defeating him unless he could make the exposure; he delivered the original packages received from Mr. Pomeroy to Mr. Crowther, Secretary of the Joint Convention.

Gonvention.

Mr. Buckingham—You stated that you believed that money was being used; what say you to that conclusion? Witness had three reasons for that assertion: First, Pomeroy's headquarters were comparatively deserted on Saturday night, which he considered the hottest period of the connest, whereas they had before been thronged; second, Mr. Price of Atchison told him that Mr. Edirdige and Mr. Hallock each had a $1.000 draft, which the said they had been given to bet on the election; and, third, that he saw Mr. Billings, a member of the Legislature, in the barroom of the Tefft House at about 11 o'clock, and he heard him declar repeatedly that he intended to vote for Pomeroy, and that Pomeroy's money had not bought him; beside, when the cauvass opened, the anti-Pomeloy men counted 22 votes certain, but the most bitter of them had dropped off one by one, and gone over to the other side. He suspected that improper influences were used upon them, the thought that the drafts were shown for the purpose of demoralizing the election, and that Billings would not have declared that he was not bought before being accused unless he was guilty. He was not opposed to Pomeroy alone, but as a part of the most gigantic and corrupt despotism that ever crashed the State.

Senator Win. A. Johnson was sworn and examined. He corroborated substantially the statements of York concerning the planning and purpose of the conspiracy, and the appearance of the first installment of money re-Mr. Buckingham-You stated that you believed that to corroborated substantially the scatement of for-oncerning the planning and purpose of the conspiracy nd the appearance of the first installment of money re-cited by York from Pomroy, but knew nothing of the tribery except what York had told him. The manifesto of Senor Castelar, the Spanish Minister of Foreign Affairs, his reached Paris, and will be de ivered to President Thiers to-day. The recognition of the Spanish Republic by the Government of France is expected to follow immediately. The members of the Moderate Left in the National Assembly decline to join in the address of the Extreme Left to the Republicans of Spain.

Señor Salustiano Olozaga, the Spanish Embassador, called upon the Marquis de Remusat, this morning, and read to him Castelar's circular aunouncing the establishment of the Republic. The Minister says : " Neither to ternal nor foreign pressure moved the Assembly to de clare the Republic. The people are tranquil, the army obedieut, the authorities calm. The Government is re pived to preserve order at any price. It relies on the respect for law inherent in Spaniards, and the fidelity of the army. Spain possesses all the virtues necessary for self-government. To dispel false impressions and remove apprehensions the Government declares that it is resolved to maintain the organization of the army, which is esolved to maintain its authority.

FEBRUARY WEATHER.

THE PROGRESS OF THE THAW.

It is common fallacy to express preference for all other kinds of weather than that which prevails in extreme cold heat is always desired, and in midsummer a frosty day is considered the best. This disconten has reason at the time of a thaw, which is attended with discomforts of the worst possible kind. The wet and impassable streets, the overflowing drains, the strata of ce relieved of the dirt and roughness that had made them safe for pedestrians, the penetrating cold underfoot and the unseasonable warmth overhead, justified the animadversions that might have been heard yesterday in the mouths of those who went out and those who were compelled to stay at home. A thaw was very generally and positively declared to be the very worst of conditions, having no other compensation than the prospect of milder weather to come. The roadways and sidewalks of this city and Brooklyn were in many places submerged, and in the latter city no effort was made to open the culverts and gutters for the passage of the immense quantities of water formed as the accumulations of snow dissolved. In this city, however, the sidewalks in the main streets were cleared of slush during the day, but the roadways were like shallow canals, and will not probably be improved for several days.

Brooklyn, formerly occupied as a Democratic wigwam, was thrown down, causing a loss of $500. A dispatch received from Poughkeepsic, states that a heavy snow-storm completely blocked the city railroads on Sunday night, and that no cars were running yesterday. A train on the Poughkeepsic and Eastern Railroad was snow-bound near Boston Corners all day, and a relief engine was sent to it.

GOVERNMENT REPORT.

WAR DEPARTMENT,

OFFICE OF THE CHIEF SIGNAL OFFICER,

WASHINGTON, D. C., Thesday, Feb. 18—1 a. m.

Synopsis for the past incents-four against

The area of lowest barometer, which was,
Sunday night south of New-England, has moved to the north-eastward beyond our stations. The highest prossure is now over the Middle States.

An area of low harometer is apparently over Kansas and Nebraska. North-easterly winds with rain and snow have been followed by clear weather in New-England, and north-west winds, with clear weather, have prevailed during Monday over the Middle States.

Increasing south-easterly winds and partly cloudy weather are now reported from Ohio to Arkansas and northward to the lakes.

South-easterly winds, with partly cloudy weather, have prevailed during Monday in Texas. Falling barometer and light rain are now reported from San Francisco.

Probabilities.

For New-England, on Thesday, pleasant weather, winds backing to south-east by Tuesday night. For the Middle States, southerly winds, rising temperature, and partly cloudy weather.

For the South Atlantic States south-easterly winds, rislog temperature, and increasing cloudiness; from Tennessee to the lakes failing barometer, rising temperature,

For the South Allantic States south cascas; from Tennesses to the lakes (siling barometer, rising temperature, increasing southeasterly winds and cloudy weather. On the 'Guif States failing barometer, south and east winds, the winds will probably increase to brisk over Illiness and the upper lakes in advance of the low barometer moving in that direction.

Mr. Hugo Bussmeyer will give a concert at Steinway Hall to-morrow evening, in which he will be assisted by Mrs. Genevieve Hoyt, soprano; Herr Frans Remmertz, baritone: Herr Benno Walter, violin, (sole violinist to the King of Bayaria), and Herr Theo. Feder
